Training Provided to Teachers

LETRS is flexible literacy professional development for teachers that shows teachers how language, reading, and writing are related to one another and other critical elements that are most effective in improving overall reading outcomes. LETRS helps teachers build a masterful understanding of the science behind reading.

S.M.A.R.T. Toolkit

Starting More Academically Ready Today is a resource provided to parents in an effort to encourage parents to engage their child in daily learning activities designed to increase literacy and broaden numeracy skills.

100 Wonderful Words That Work

An interactive workbook and educational initiative has been devised to support early learning and growth in vocabulary attainment amongst Clayton County School District students and community stakeholders.

Pre-K Engagement Parent Series (PEP Series)

Presentations such as “Make it and Take It” where community stakeholders create engaging activities to provide learning opportunities for their child held in Clayton County Libraries.

Learning Spaces

Learning Spaces is a school readiness and family engagement initiative sponsored by United Way of Greater Atlanta Education Department (Quality Improvements), Clayton County Library System, and Clayton County Public Schools supports this initiative by providing kindergarten readiness information during scheduled sessions and support for the learning theme at various libraries including Battle Creek, Riverdale, and Forest Park.

Clayton County Public Library

The public library offers both books and online resources. Login using your library card number to access:

- Sesame Street eBook World: a library of eBooks featuring the characters of Sesame Street
- Tumblebooks: a collection of animated, talking picture books
